

Key Facts

- Families are important for children growing up because they can give love, security and stability
- Others' families, either in school or in the wider world, sometimes look different from your own family. However, you should respect those differences and know that other children's families are also characterised by love and care for each other
- Friendships are important in making us feel happy and secure
- Most friendships have ups and downs, and these can often be worked through so that the friendship is repaired or even strengthened. Resorting to violence is never right
- Healthy friendships are positive and welcoming towards others, and do not make others feel lonely or excluded

I will learn the following new words/phrases:

Relationship	A connection between two or more people or things.
Love	Strong feelings of affection for another person, activity, or object.
Security	Feeling safe and free from fear or danger.
Stability	Reliable or unlikely to change suddenly.
Disagree	To have a different opinion. The opposite of agree.

Ask me a question!

- What types of relationships are there?
- How can you show that you care about special people/things?
- What makes a good friend?
- What kind of things can friends fall out over or disagree about?
- What can we do if we fall out with our friends?

By the end of this topic, I should:

- understand different types of relationships
- understand how to be a good friend
- be able to recognise kind and thoughtful behaviours
- understand the importance of caring about other people's feelings
- be able to see a situation from another person's point of view
